Fun Bible Facts

What was traveling like in Bible times?

Travel in biblical times was fraught with difficulty and danger. Bandits were a constant hazard.

People did not journey alone. Caravans were organized by individuals or agencies that made the arrangements. Few people would have traveled for pleasure. Going to Jerusalem for the pilgrimage feasts would have been the nearest one came to a vacation.

Carriages would have transported some of the pilgrims. The owners of such conveyances rented them out along with a guide. Donkeys, too, were rented for such journeys.

Passengers carried only what they needed for the journey: a bag to hold money, a walking staff, a second pair of shoes and a cloak. The cloak would be used as a blanket and most travelers slept on the ground. One would also carry a flask to draw water from wells during the journey.
